Bills approved, axed legislative hours

The legislature coasted into its 1977 60 day session with final approval of a bill which still needed important matters to be in session up to midnight with legislators "demanding to bring bills out," Farnsworth said.

Normally a bill goes through three readings and is reviewed by a committee, finally receiving consideration for passage after the third reading. But sometimes in the frantic last days, legislators will try to push bills through without following this process.

Meanwhile, the legislature passed a utility relief bill Wednesday which brought the total to three for tax reduction measures passed this session by the 42nd Utah Legislature. The other two tax relief bills brought a reduction in the inheritance tax and relief to the elderly and poor through a "circuit breaker" bill.

The utility tax bill, according to Farnsworth, will cut the cost of a $40 monthly gas bill by about $1.50. He said it was a compromise bill after income tax and food sales tax relief bills had trouble receiving passage.

The utility tax relief bill was a surprise bill which popped up in the final days, said Farnsworth.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed a bill which will impose longer sentences on persons using guns in felonies. The Senate also completed a measure aimed at solving Salt Lake County's double taxation problem. A $7 million decrease in income tax also appeared destined to be killed.

Primary victory leaves Reeder, Sadleir on top

Primary elections ended Thursday night with the president-vice presidential teams of Sadleir-Stiles going against Reeder-Holmgren in the finals next week.

ASBYU Elections Committee Chairman Chris Burdick said, "I was impressed with the diversity of the votes; all the races but one or two were very close. This is indicative of the quality of the candidates."

The total voter turnout of 7,205 was behind last year's total of 7,632. Miss Burdick said she did not know what to attribute the low turnout to, other than "student apathy and the fact that this was the primary election."

"I feel like the committee has done as much as we can in advertising and placement of voting booths," she said. "It is up to the students to follow through on the work we've done."

Academics Office final election candidates are Matt Lawrence and Tom Dickson, with Elden Archibald and Ric Page and Ken Taylor will vie for Organizations vice president while Chuck Kennedy and Thomas Longenecker are in the race for Social Office vice president.

The race for vice president of Student Community Services will see Erin Gee and Mike Page in the finals, and Karen Hill and Karen Bybee are in the finals for Women's Office vice president.

Immediately following the announcement of primary winners, Miss Burdick told the candidates the "anticipated no violations" in next week's finals, and added "this is a time to concentrate on your campaigns."

Earlier Thursday, Kirk Cullimore of the Elections Committee said tonight's Election Rally, from 9 to 12 p.m., would kick off final elections.

He said the rally would be a free disco dance in the Main Ballroom ELWC. At the rally, the final election candidates will be formally introduced and each opposing candidate will have the opportunity to ask the other one question, Cullimore said.

"Students ought to come down and really find out what the candidates will do," he said.

Candidates will also have booths set up in the ELWC Reception Center during the rally and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Julie Blohm, Elections committee member said.

On Monday, candidates will be able to campaign at the booths from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. "The group Jazz Combo will perform in the center of the lounge from 12 noon til 1 p.m. Monday," she said, and Monday

Vote defies Deontological, takes to mark Lee Library dedication

By ANTOINE CLARK

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate defied President Carter on Thursday by voting overwhelmingly to make him spend all of the money appropriated for water development projects.

Both Democrats and Republicans opposed Carter on the issue even though the President met with members of Congress several hours earlier to explain his proposed cutbacks.

By a 65 to 24 vote, the Senate attached the water project amendment to a bill creating public works jobs to stimulate the economy. The House has adopted a different jobs bill.

Carter deleted funds for 19 water projects in the budget he submitted to Congress last month. In addition, the administration disclosed this week that 27 additional water projects have failed initial screening and may also be in jeopardy even though Congress has authorized them.

Powell said Carter may still decide to impound the funds if the House sustained the Senate action. But he added the President might also reconsider individual projects if presented with "compelling new evidence" that they are necessary.

With the backing of key committee chairmen, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston introduced the amendment which he said "undoes the President's plan on water projects."

It specifies that the water projects "should not be discontinued except by following the legislative process."

Library tours will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 4 to 6 p.m. Tuesday. The tours will begin Wednesday at noon and run until 2 p.m., then again from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Activities will begin Wednesday with a colloquium on the Alpine Press at 2:30 p.m. in 6225 HBL featuring Leona Roseburg and Madeleine Stern. Both are dealers in rare books in New York City. Following the colloquium at 4 p.m. an exhibit and reception will be held featuring the Alpine Press exhibit in 4040 HBL.

The week's activities will end Thursday with a women's archives symposium entitled "Out of the Archives and into the Spotlight." Sessions will feature stories from the lives of notable women of the past with presentations to be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in 347 and 349 ELWC.

All library personnel will sit in a special session in the Marriott Center during the proceedings, Bush said.

Tuesday's presentation by E. DeAlton Partridge will establish a new memorial program in honor of former BYU English teacher Alice Louise Reynolds. Mrs. Reynolds donated her literature collections to the library, according to Bush.

Colloquium speaker Dr. Holley graduated with a B.A. degree from David Lipscomb College and received his M.A. at George Peabody College for Teachers and his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois.

In 1964 a book published from his dissertation, "Charles Evans: American Bibliographer," won the Scarcrow Press Award of the American Library Association. He is credited with his contribution to library literature.

From 1962 to 1972 Dr. Holley was director of libraries at the University of Houston. While in Houston he served as chairman of the U.S. Office of Education Advisory Council on College Library Resources and president of the Texas Library Association. In 1974-75 Dr. Holley served as president of the American Library Association.

Miss Roseburg and Miss Stern were instrumental in helping BYU establish its present collection of Alpine Press books, said Bush.

Miss Roseburg is past president of the Antiquarian Booksellers Association of America. She is author of several books including "English Publishers in Graphic Arts" and "Literary, Political, Scientific, Religious and Legal Publishing, Printing and Bookselling in England."

Miss Stern is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, an honorary scholastic society, and is a former Guggenheim Fellow.

A description of the Renaissance will be the topic of this year's Distinguished Faculty Lecture, to be delivered Friday at 8 p.m. in the HPAC de Jong Concert Hall.

The lecture, entitled "Reflections of a Renaissance Treasury," will be given by Dr. De Lamar Jensen, professor of History at BYU whose research and writing on European history have won for him the title of "Distinguished Faculty Lecturer" for the 1976-1977 school year at BYU. The public is invited to attend.

The Distinguished Faculty Lecture is considered the single most prestigious event on campus honoring a faculty member for excellence in creativity and research.

"The Renaissance was an age of innovation, creativity, and revolution," said Dr. Jensen. "It was a time of bold ventures and daring enterprises, of conquering the seas, discovering new worlds, defying the might of the papal empire, and changing scientific assumptions of 2,000 years."

Although it produced monumental art, scholarly reforms, and dramatic economic and political expansion, it also disclosed religious bigotry, personal cruelty and wholesale destruction, he explained.

Dr. Jensen has published five books, a monograph, more than a dozen articles, and 29 book reviews in scholarly journals.

He has also spoken at many history conferences and has been invited to present a paper in April in Anger, France, at BYU honoring the 500th anniversary of the birth of Sir Thomas More.

He has received grants from the Institute of International Education, the Rockefeller Foundation, and the National Endowment for the Humanities to do historical research in Europe. He has also directed a number of BYU study groups to Mexico and Europe, and directed the Semester Abroad program in Madrid in 1974.

Recognized many times for his scholarly achievements, Dr. Jensen received the Karl G. Maeser Creative Research Award in 1970 and the Karl G. Maeser Teaching Excellence Award in 1974.

BYU Students selected him as Professor of the Month in 1968 and 1972. He is listed in many biographical directories of national and international scholars, and in 1972 he was named one of the outstanding Educators of America.

Dr. Jensen received a B.A. degree in history at BYU in 1952 and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at Columbia University in 1953 and 1957.

He taught for three years at New York University before joining the BYU faculty in 1957. From 1967 to 1972, he was chairman of the BYU History Department.

Dr. Jensen is a native of Roseworth, Idaho. He served as a pilot in the U.S. Army Air Corps in World War II, and filled a mission for the LDS Church in Mexico and Guatemala. He married Mary White, and they have five sons and daughters.

Vengeance-seeking terrorists Free hostages, make demands

WASHINGTON (AP)—While vengeance-seeking terrorists held scores of hostages as their pawns Thursday, the leader of the rival Black Muslim movement flew to Washington to meet with officials seeking a way out of the siege that gripped police, gunmen and captives.

Wallace Muhammad, the Black Muslim leader and one of the men sought by the terrorists, arrived from Chicago and was to meet with District of Columbia Mayor Walter E. Washington.

Muhammad to assist

The spokesman indicated Wallace Muhammad could possibly assist in negotiations with members of the rival Hanafi Muslim sect who were holding as many as 135 hostages in three buildings, one within sight of the White House.

The ambassadors of three Moslem nations also were seeking to negotiate an end to the standoff.

As the siege entered its second day, the terrorists were threatening to behead their captives and demanding that Wallace Muhammad and the other men they blamed for the 1973 murder of seven Hanafi members be brought to them.

"We are committed to retribution. Our law allows that," said Khalifa Haqqani, leader of the Hanafi sect of the terrorists and chief of the predominantly Black Hanafi sect.

Abdul Khaalis, in one of the dozens of interviews he broadcast by telephone from the besieged eighth floor of the B'nai B'rith headquarters building, vowed revenge for the slayings and said, "There is no justice without the sword."

Wallace Muhammad has denied responsibility for the 1973 slayings, for which four Philadelphia Black Muslims were convicted.

At the B'nai B'rith building—in effect the terrorists' command post—Abdul Khaalis and three to five companions were holding more than 100 hostages.

Casualties reported

It was there the raids began, at mid-day Wednesday, followed swiftly by invasions of the Islamic Center, a mosque in the Embassy Row district, and the District of Columbia Building, near the White House.

The intruders were armed with rifles, shotguns, automatic weapons, knives and swords.

One man Maurice Williams, 24, a reporter for radio station WHUR, was shot and killed in the takeover at the district building, the capital's city hall. Four people injured in the strikes there and at B'nai B'rith remained hospitalized.

Seven others were beaten or stabbed, and were treated and released.

There were varying reports on the number of hostages, and on the number of black gunmen holding them.

At the district building, police said seven hostages were held, their hands bound, by two gunmen.

An undetermined number of city workers remained barricaded in fifth floor offices, too close to the terrorists to attempt escape.

And at the mosque, where the takeover came without shooting, there were thought to be three gunmen and nine or 10 hostages.

Abdul Khaalis did most of the talking, and it was he who demanded revenge for the 1973 murders of seven members of the Hanafi Muslim, five of them children. Six of them were named Khaalis, and the gunman said he was their father.

Demands met

In addition to his demands the men he said were responsible for the murders be brought to him, Khaalis had other demands, and at least two were met: U.S. showings of the film

"Mohammad, Messenger of God" were canceled on Wednesday, and police refunded $750 he was fined for contempt of court at the Hanafi trial.

Ardesheir Zahedi, the ambassador of Iran, said in an interview he had been in contact with the gunmen at B'nai B'rith. "We're trying to help," he said. "I'm doing this in a humanitarian sense. I'm afraid to say more. I'm afraid it would harm the situation."

At mid-day Thursday, police spokesman Gary Hankins said police strategy was to wait.

"We found in the past we have more success if we just sit it out," he said.

"It's not as dramatic as gunfire and busting in windows, but it works better."

The terrorists sent out for food for themselves and their captives. Medicine was delivered to B'nai B'rith for hostages who needed regular medication.

A hostage at the District of Columbia building said the captors provided food and cigarettes, and bound the hostages' hands in front of them, which was more comfortable than behind.

But Abdul Khaalis said authorities must meet his demands, or "the worst is to come... I'm prepared to die."

No flu epidemic expected in country

By GRACE WHITAKER
Universe Staff Writer

Although cases of Type-B influenza have been documented in the state, it should not be a major problem in Utah County, according to Dr. E.A. Isaacson of the Utah City-County Health Department.

Dr. Isaacson said Type-B influenza is not likely to be in epidemic proportions as it was in Davis County, where Bountiful Junior High School was closed because of the disease.

According to Glen E. Roundy, assistant director of the MacDonnell Health Center, there has been no verification of that type of influenza on campus. "There are several influenza symptoms going around," he said, "but they haven't been isolated to Type-B influenza."

In order to isolate certain types of influenza, throat washings and other laboratory tests have to be administered, Roundy explained. "As far as BYU is concerned, I haven't been given any information that we have that type of flu here," he said. Dr. Isaacson said the warm weather has cut down on the number of influenza cases here. Because people are outdoors and don't spend as much time cooped up in buildings, there are greater chances of human contact and spreading the disease, there have been fewer number of cases.

He said Type-B influenza usually hits youths in the teen and pre-teen years, causing coughing, sore throat and fever for four to seven days.

According to Dr. Taira Fukushima, director of the State Health Division's office of communicable diseases, this type of influenza usually causes an acute rise in the absentee rates of junior and senior high schools. "An influenza epidemic will suddenly double or triple the absentee rate, raising it as high as 20 to 30 per cent," he said.

It was the high absentee rates in Davis County that first indicated that influenza was in the state, Dr. Fukushima said. The disease moved south to Salt Lake and Utah Counties and cases of Type-B influenza have been reported in Duchesne, Weber, Morgan,

Worm rustlers create wild western whod

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Back when the West was wild and men were men, rustlers were nabbed by a posse and strung up from the nearest tree or telegraph pole, as befitting the best spaghetti western. But times have changed. Now worms, not cattle, are the prime target of rustlers hunting a fast buck.

The latest rustling episode would cause the likes of Wild Bill Hickok or Doc Holliday to turn in their graves. Authorities said Wednesday they still have no leads in the mysterious rustling of 11 million worms from a Wyoming worm farm.

Casper authorities speculate that sometime during January rustlers with a speed truck removed the worms from an airport warehouse.

The investigator handed for the Natrona County office said Wednesday of the rustled worms he phone calls from country.

Detective Art Terry very unique. There's another case like this. Somebody in the business them. They knew ex they were after."

Box Elder, Emery and Washington Counties.

"This time of year is the normal season for influenza," Dr. Fukushima said. Absentee rates are up in schools all over the state, but the State Health Division hasn't received reports from every area. "If the colleges have had it, we haven't heard about it," he said.

Compared to last year, cases of influenza are less. Dr. Fukushima said the present situation should phase out this month. "The classical influenza epidemic pattern lasts for four to six weeks in the state and then disappears," he said. Not to be confused with intestinal flu or colds, Type-B influenza generally limits itself to high school kids and younger, he said. "That's why it's so easy to diagnose an epidemic. It's extremely difficult to diagnose single cases of influenza."

Type B is a milder disease than Type-A influenza, Dr. Fukushima explained. "The whole town," he said. Swine flu is a variant of Type-A influenza.

Speech to tell pageant origin

An illustrated history of the origins of the Hill Cumorah pageant will be presented by Dr. Oliver R. Smith of the Communications Department Sunday.

The history, to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Provo 2-18th Ward Cultural Hall, 945 E. 700 North, will trace the development of Eastern States Mission conferences at Palmyra, N.Y., from 1923 through 1939, and the pageants at the Joseph Smith Farm, 1928-34 and at Cumorah, beginning in July, 1936.

Carter pledges effort in Mideast talks

WASHINGTON—President Carter is promising a major American effort to convene a Middle East peace conference in Geneva before the year is out. Carter, who met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin this week and plans sessions with Arab leaders in the next month, discussed the Middle East situation at a broadcast news conference Wednesday.

Angola troops seize cities in Zaïre

KINSHASA, Zaïre—"Foreign troops" from Angola have invaded southern Zaïre and occupy three important mining and communications centers, the government Voice of Zaïre said Wednesday. The radio said "armed foreign troops had seized the three cities three days ago." It gave no details of fighting.

Carter proclaims friendship to Britain

WASHINGTON—President Carter welcomed British Prime Minister James Callaghan to the White House Thursday proclaiming a "special relationship" and "unshakable friendship" between the United States and Great Britain. The traditional 19-gun salute that welcomed a visiting head of state was omitted from the ceremony on the White House South Lawn as a result of the terrorist siege at Washington's city hall, just two blocks from the White House grounds, and two other buildings.

Romania ignores U.S. quake warnings

BUCHAREST, Romania—The Romanian and Bulgarian news agencies today discounted U.S. warnings that a second devastating earthquake might follow the one that last Friday killed at least 1,357 persons and injured 10,296 by official count.

U.S. Ambassador Harry G. Barnes delivered a U.S. Geological Survey report to the government Wednesday, warning that another major quake might follow "within weeks or months." The report said an analysis of Romanian earthquakes indicated they often occurred in pairs.

But the Romanian news agency Agpres said, "A careful and specific study of the objective data and the history of some categories of earthquakes in the Vrancea area, which comprise the earthquake of Friday evening, lead to the conclusion that a repetition of a magnitude similar to March 4 is hardly possible."

GENEVA, Switzerland—The U.N. Human Rights Commission, with U.S. support, has condemned repression by Chile's military junta, but the 32-nation panel rebuffed a British bid for public debate of mass murder charged to President Idi Amin in Uganda.

Elder Dyer praised at funeral for LDS youth achievements

Elder Alvin R. Dyer, who died Sunday following a long illness, was lauded at his funeral service Wednesday for his many contributions to youth.

President Ezra Taft Benson, of the Council of the Twelve, said Elder Dyer, as a bishop, had enjoyed success with young people in terms of activity, missions, temple marriages and later leadership in the church.

He said Elder Dyer was also a "great motivator" of young missionaries, and some of his proselyting methods still are used in the missionary program.

Elder Dyer, of the First Quorum of Seventy, died at his home at the age of 74. The Utah Legislature passed a resolution Wednesday extending condolences to Elder Dyer's family.

Donoho said. The school system and curricula are much the same as those of the United States. In fact, he said, 265 American students are currently enrolled in these colleges in pursuit of the study of Chinese history, literature and art while another 500 concentrate in the study of the Chinese language. In the spring of 1975 and 1976, two Chinese student goodwill missions visited more than one hundred American college campuses, including BYU in 1975. The fact they were so well received, he said, prompted 126 college students to apply for this year's mission. After a careful screening of talent, 28 were selected to form two groups. One of these groups will be the guests at BYU Tuesday. The missions are sponsored by the Chinese Television Service of the Republic of Taiwan. The 14 students who will be performing were chosen from among 100 universities in talent competition held in Taiwan," Donoho said. "A similar group, different individuals, were at BYU about two years ago. The Chinese Club will be hosting the group at dinner Tuesday evening."

LDS leader to give address

By BRUCE KING
Universe Staff Writer

President Spencer W. Kimball will deliver the dedicatory address for the new Orem campus of the Utah Technical College at Provo (UTC-P) Monday, at dedication services beginning at 10 a.m.

His remarks will follow a selection from the Orem High School A Cappella Choir and brief addresses from Gov. Scott A. Matheson, former Utah Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, UTC-P Pres. Wilson W. Sorenson and UTC-P Assistant to the Pres. LaVar Rockwood.

According to Roger Honeyman, UTC-P job placement coordinator, the speeches will be made in the Business Building and will last about one hour. The program will be followed by an open house and tour of the new campus. He said the public is invited and "urged to attend."

"Presiding at the March 14 dedication will be the man who has been at the helm of Utah Tech for most of its lifetime, Pres. Wilson W. Sorenson. It will be an added occasion for him because the dedication will include the Wilson W. Sorenson Student Center," Honeyman said.

Those in attendance will see four completed buildings, the automotive building, business building, student center and mechanical building. Honeyman said the automotive and mechanical buildings have been in use since last fall. The other two buildings are expected to be occupied by mid-April.

Officials from local cities have been invited to the dedication, Honeyman said. In addition, representatives from the State Board of Education and college presidents of all Utah schools were invited. As many as 15 hundred people are expected to attend the dedication, he said.

The open house will continue Tuesday and Wednesday with tours and displays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

The new campus has been partially in use since last fall, Honeyman said, "but March 14 will be the formal beginning of a new era for UTC-P." The new campus encompasses 185 acres just east of I-15 and north of 1200 South in Orem.

"UTC is the first Utah school to be planned directly from a master plan where every school building was planned at one time," Honeyman said. Every future building on the Orem campus and its location is on this master plan.

Campus police chief denies wrongdoing in wiretap case

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Weber State College campus Police Chief William Carver denied any wrongdoing Wednesday after a federal grand jury indicted him on two counts of wiretapping.

The charges followed a two-year investigation.

"I'm not concerned in the least about any indictments," Carver said. The indictments charge Carver with wiretapping the school's Ethnic Studies Department and a student dormitory in 1975.

U.S. District Court Judge Aldon Anderson issued a summons for Carver to appear on the federal charges.

"I still don't feel I've done anything wrong," Carver said in an interview. "In my own mind, I'm innocent of anything anybody might say I'm doing wrong."

University President Joseph Bishop was not immediately available for comment. Deputy U.S. Atty. Brent Ward said Bishop was among several people investigated by the jury in the matter.

The grand jury simply decided there was insufficient evidence to indict him," ward said.

The wiretapping investigation began when former college security guard David Nelson alleged that security police were eavesdropping on the Ethnic Studies Department and a student dormitory.

Deputy U.S. Atty. Max Wheeler said the jury was continuing investigation into other "significant" issues in the Ogden area. But he declined to say what they are.

Research award will help study of LDS printing

Dr. Peter Crawley, BYU professor of mathematics, has been chosen as the recipient of the fourth annual Commissioner's Research Fellowship Award.

According to Dr. Jeffrey R. Holland, Commissioner of the LDS Church educational system, fellowships are awarded annually to distinguished LDS scholars to assist in preparation of scholarly works for publication. Competition for the fellowships is open to LDS scholars inside and outside the church educational system.

Dr. Crawley will prepare an analytical bibliography of materials relating to the period 1830-1857. His bibliography will discuss some 600 printed items produced by Mormons during the first 27 years of the church's existence.

According to Dr. Crawley, an essay will be written about each book discussing the circumstances surrounding its publications, the ideas contributed to it, its influence on subsequent publications and generally its place in the evolution of Mormon thoughts and preparations.

Dr. Crawley said the publications are intended to describe and analyze the development of Mormon thought during this early period, particularly from the point of view of the printed record.

... fellowship recipient

Prior to joining the faculty at BYU in September 1972, Dr. Crawley was professor of mathematics at California Institute of Technology, where he earned his B.A. and doctorate in mathematics. He has also been a collector of early Mormon Americana.

Illustrator to give forum on animating myth, legend

"Animating Myth and Legend" will be the topic of a forum sponsored by the Harold B. Lee Library in the de Jong Concert Hall of the Fine Arts Center today at 2 p.m.

The forum will feature Gerald McDermott, winner of the 1975 Caldecott Medal for outstanding illustrations in children's literature. The forum is sponsored in part by the BYU College of Education in conjunction with the Harold B. Lee Library.

According to Afton Miner, educational librarian in charge of the forum, McDermott's films and books are taken from mythological or legendary subject matter. His films include "The Stonecutter," "Sunlight," "Anansi the Spider," and "Arrow to the Sun."

In 1973 "Anansi and Spider" was designated as a Caldecott Honor Book and in 1975 "Arrow to the Sun" was awarded the Caldecott Medal.

Filmmaker and Book Illustrator
GERALD McDERMOTT

Winner of the 1975 Caldecott Medal for Arrow to the Sun and the 1973 Caldecott Honor for Anansi the Spider, Gerald McDermott will present an address entitled "Animating Myth and Legend." It will be held in the de Jong Concert Hall today at 2:00 p.m.

Autographed copies of his children's books will be available for sale at the Concert Hall for an hour before and after the address.

Copies will also be available at the BYU Bookstore.

Ricercare

Style, grace mark of group

By CHRISTINE NOKLEBY
Universe Staff Writer

Ricercare, the renowned European wind ensemble, Wednesday night gave a musical offering of style and grace, mixed with the flavor of the Renaissance world.

Michel Piquet founded the ensemble with the purpose of creating a group of winds to perform as authentically as possible the rich musical repertoire of the 13th-17th centuries. The ensemble's appearance and performance showed that the group is fulfilling this purpose.

Piquet and the other four artists, who are also his students, entered the stage looking much like the Renaissance court musicians of old, clad in velvet tunics. They selected instruments from a long table laden with other curious and odd-shaped wind instruments.

The group then stood and played the first number, "Four Pieces," by Heinrich Isaac, with intensity and vigor. They rocked with the rhythm and melody of the piece. People in the audience were soon enjoying themselves as were the performers.

The second number, "Four French Chansons," was more subdued, with a mellow sweetness and lyrical quality that transported one back to the gilded age of the Renaissance.

At the completion of the second number, Piquet asked the audience members if they wished to learn more about the ancient instruments the ensemble was playing.

The audience in one voice exclaimed "Yes." It was obvious at this point that rapport between audience and ensemble was favorable.

He first demonstrated the recorder, the typical instrument of the period, followed by the low-sounding recorder called the bassoon, which is the forerunner of today's bassoon.

He also played the krumpholtz, grandfather of the oboe, a short slender tube bent up in a hook-like curve which sounds much like a buzzer door bell. The most novel instrument demonstrated was the sordano, a slightly curved tuba that sounds much like the trumpet.

At intervals the performers went to the table and selected other instruments. On the last three numbers, one player performed on drums and tambourines with the rhythm drum rhythms he played were surprisingly modern. Most Renaissance music sounds much the same, simply because the composers of the period didn't know as much about music as composers do today. Perhaps this is the reason the unique drum rhythms were so noticeable.

Members of the Renaissance wind ensemble "Ricercare" perform in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC, Wednesday night.

Ricercare consistently performed with precision and accuracy the whole evening. Even when tempos were faster, every note and trill could be heard.

The audience was delighted by the encore, which was reminiscent of the droning bagpipe. The bassoons played the bagpipe sound and the other instruments held the melody.

Theatrical works planned for Mormon Arts festival

By MITCH SNOW
Universe Staff Writer

The Department of Theater and Cinematic Arts has a variety of major productions scheduled for the Mormon Festival of Arts.

According to Dr. Charles Metten, chairman of the department, "The Would-Be Gentleman," a comedy by Moliere recently translated by Dr. John A. Green of the BYU French Department; "Peter Pan," a musical theater production; and "Dear Lier," a musical theater production based on the letters of George Bernard Shaw, will be presented during this year's festival.

"The Would-Be Gentleman," directed by Dr. Metten, will open March 17 and run through April 1 in the Margret Arena Theater, HFAC. "Dear Lier," directed by Dr. Peston Gledhill and starring Bob Bigelow and Miffi Anderson, will open March 23 and run through March 26 in 205 JRCB. "Peter Pan," directed by Dr. Charles Whitman, will open in the Pardee Drama Theater March 24 and will run through April 16. Tickets for the productions are $1 for students, faculty, and staff. Public admission is $1.75 for "The Would-Be Gentleman" and "Dear Lier" and $3.25 for "Peter Pan."

"The Tortoise and the Hare and other Tales Told by Puppets" and "Show and Tell Tales" will also be presented during the festival by Whittin' whistlin' Brigade, a children's theater company from BYU, according to Dr. Harold Oaks, director of the group. "The Tortoise and the Hare" will be presented in F-201, HFAC March 25-26 at 7 p.m. "Show and Tell Tales" is scheduled for March 31 and April 1 in 8-201 HFAC at 7 p.m. Admission to the plays is 50 cents for children and $1 for adults.

A departmental assembly on March 17 at 10 p.m. in the Nelke Experimental Theater, HFAC, will feature Mormon artist Marvin Payne in the first of the special events sponsored by the department during the festival. Payne will sing and talk about Mormon artists, Dr. Metten said.

The assembly will also feature the presentation of the Irene Ryan award for acting to graduate student Bob Bigelow. Bigelow won this award at the regional competition of the American College Theater Festival. He will also compete at the national acting competition in Washington, D.C., later this year, Dr. Metten said.

A student film festival in conjunction with the Communications Department is scheduled for March 28 and 31 in the Nelke Experimental Theater. The festival will show films by students in beginning, intermediate, and advanced categories. Some of the films shown are products of Tad Danielewski's professional motion picture and television workshops, Dr. Metten said. The films will begin at 2 p.m. on both days, and there will be no admission charge.

A lecture on the use of puppets for health missionaries will also be presented during the festival. Dr. Harold Oaks, associate professor of theater, will speak on a research project carried out last semester in Samoa, Fiji and Tonga in which workshops were held training health missionaries in this area. The speech will be given in the Nelke Experimental Theater, March 20 at 4 p.m.

Students from the department will also be participating in the Mormon Arts Ball, sponsored by the ASBYU Culture Office, Dr. Metten said. Three one-act plays presented during the ball will be directed by students from the department, he said.

'Footprints of Freedom' to perform Tuesday at Y

The annual Footprints of Freedom concert will be in the delong Concert Hall Tuesday at 8 p.m., according to an Air Force officer.

The Footprints, Capt. Victor Krzymowski said, are Air Force ROTC Cadets and members of Angel Flight who present a message of patriotism through song, dance and multi-media. He said some of the different kinds of music include "patriotic, nostalgia, country, religious and popular."

The concert is co-sponsored by the Air Force ROTC and the BYU Music Department, Krzymowski said.

The program will feature barbershop-type quartets and soloists, as well as the group performances. He said the concert is scheduled to be about an hour and a half and includes 23 numbers, including solos by Debbie Gray, DeAnn Kempton, Scott Beckstead and Robin Brooksby.

Under the direction of H. Jarolde Harris of the music department, they perform songs such as "I Dig Rock and Roll Music," "I Am A Child of God," "Summertime" and "Love at Home."

Krzymowski said, "Besides instilling patriotism, the group gives cadets leadership experience."

Monday

Varsity Theater: "The Shootist," 3:30, 7, 9:05 p.m.

Gable, Astaire star in Another double feature including stars Clark Gable and Fred Astaire is being offered by the Film Society this Friday and Saturday, 6:30, 8 and 9:30 p.m. in 446 MARB.

"Red Dust," with Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Mary Astor is set on a plantation in the middle of a jungle. Gable plays rough rubber farm manager Dennis Carson, a man lacking civilization's polished manners. Into his land of rain storms comes Vantine (Jean Harlow), a drifting woman of the world who gives Carson a lively existence, even though he treats her with little hospitality. The two understand each other, knowing the realities of Indo-China and of themselves.

The arrival of a bright young engineer named

Gary Willis (Gene Raymond), and his attractive young bride Barbara (Mary Astor), causes nothing but trouble as Carson feels the young groom of the fever and stirs up a fever of his own with Mrs. Willis, a delicate, modest woman that Carson can't help Gableizing. Carson finds his respect for Gary will cut through the callouses of jungle desires, and he finds himself with a streak of integrity just in time. Miss Harlow has some great lines, but otherwise the dialogue is quite dull.

A successful RKO musical comedy, "Follow the Fleet," stars Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. The story is of the reuniting of Baker (Astaire) and his former girl friend and vaudeville dancing partner Sherry (Miss

Diving starts at Y today

By GIFFORD NIELSEN
Universe Sports Writer

The NCAA regional diving championships get underway today and continue through tomorrow in the Richards Building, where a dozen divers vie for NCAA berths in the one and three-meter board competition.

Preliminaries for the one-meter competition will begin at 11 a.m. with the finals starting at 5 p.m. today. This same schedule will apply on Saturday for the three-meter diving competition.

BYU will have one diver competing for the competition. Tom Bugg, a 5-6, 145-pound sophomore from Loveland, Colo., will represent the Cougars. Tom qualified for the NCAA regionals with 454 points on the one-meter board and he has done 435 on the three-meter board.

"The best divers in the Western Athletic Conference, plus everything West of us, will be here to try to qualify for the finals in Cleveland," BYU's diving coach Rolie Bestor said.

"The top four divers in both the one and three-meter boards will advance into the championships."

The WAC conference will present the top divers among those participating. Bestor noted, Arizona will have three contestants, and Arizona State will have two. BYU, Washington, Oregon, Pepperdine, USC and UCLA will each be represented by one diver.

The favorites for the regional meet appear to be Dan LaSarge and Tim Stiles of Arizona State, who placed one-two in the WAC meet held March 3. The defending WAC champion and All-American Bart Morris, from Arizona, will also be considered one of the favorites, along with his teammate

Glen Howard another All-American. "There were 90 entries in last year's NCAA diving championships," Bestor said, "and that's just too many. That's why they have turned to the NCAA regionals to thin out the number of divers who can qualify. This way you can cut out the guys who aren't consistent."

"Diving in the West," he added, "has been dominated by schools in the Western Athletic Conference. And this looks like another good year for the league."

Racquetball growing in popularity at BYU

By BRUCE KING
Universe Sports Writer

Two years ago a BYU student could walk over to the Richards Building or Smith Fieldhouse at anytime and find a free racquetball court, but not any more. In the last two years, racquetball's popularity has doubled at BYU. Since the game was first played on campus in 1970, becoming immediately popular, it has become more and more favored.

According to Walter Cryer, the coordinator of racquetball and handball, racquetball is "extremely popular" here, especially the last two years. In fact, racquetball has greatly increased in popularity all over the country in the past few years.

Because avid BYU racquetball players limited the number of students who could play by tying up courts for hours, when the game became popular on campus, court scheduling was started, Cryer said. The scheduling process started about three years ago, but last year "we really got tight on it."

If a student wants a court now, he has to schedule one or go to the Richards Building or Smith Fieldhouse and find an unscheduled court, according to Intramural Director Bruce Holley. Students who schedule courts sometimes cancel, allowing free play for others until the court is rescheduled.

Holley said he has gone to the Richards Building at 5:45 a.m., hurriedly dressed, then run to the racquetball courts, only to find them all taken up when reaching them by 6:05 a.m. He said faculty members have told him finding a court at BYU was easier when the school only had four handball courts.

Lines sometimes form at the scheduling office, Holley said, but two schedulers are often employed to handle the additional students. A major reason for scheduling is to give every student a chance to play racquetball during the prime hours of 4 to 6 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., he said.

Asked if he thought BYU has enough racquetball courts to handle the demand, Holley said, "No." Paddleball is the grandfather of racquetball. Racquetball evolved into racquetball," Holley said. According to "Racquetball-Paddleball," by Allsen and Witbeck, paddleball originated in America.

"Earl Riskey of the University of Michigan is credited with being the individual who came up with the original concepts of the game in the 1930's," the book said. "While watching tennis players practice their shots in a handball court, he decided that one could play a game similar to handball, that would also include the skills of tennis. Paddleball was the result of this idea," it explains.

Cryer was asked to serve as West Area Commissioner of the U.S. Racquetball Association in 1968. He and other members of the Association wrote the racquetball rules, which were established in December of that year.

"Paddleball has fizzled out. The trend has gone to racquetball," Cryer said, although the National Paddleball Association still exists.

"There is a tremendous racquetball surge all over the country, especially over the last five years," Cryer said. "Courts are going up everywhere."

Holley said 12 racquetball courts were just finished at the Provo High School and 14 courts are being built at the proposed Orem Recreation Complex.

Handball used to be the most popular small-court BYU sport, Cryer said, but now racquetball is most popular by far. Twenty sections were offered this semester, while only four handball sections were offered.

The popularity of racquetball to handball is about 10 to 1, Cryer said, while the popularity of racquetball to squash or paddleball is about 50 to 1.

A student can schedule a court two times a week, Holley said. Classes are held from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday, but all other times the courts are open for scheduling or free play by students or faculty. The courts are open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Soccer on tap Saturday

The first outdoor BYU soccer invitational (seven-a-side) is scheduled for Saturday beginning at 1 p.m. on Haws Field.

More than 10 teams from Provo, Orem, Bountiful and Salt Lake are expected to participate in the tournament, which may be extended over the next two Saturdays, according to Coach Jim Dusa.

There will also be a women's exhibition Saturday at noon. Any coed wishing to play soccer should sign up at 11 a.m. Saturday on Haws Field.

Y tracksters shooting for top 10

Indoor track and field stars from BYU will enter four events in the 13th annual NCAA Indoor Meet this weekend at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

Coach Clarence Robison had a large number of athletes qualify for the national indoor championships, but will take only half a dozen to the meet, which gets underway today.

"It looks like Texas-El Paso will repeat as team champion," observed Robison. "and if things break right for us, we could finish among the top ten."

The Miners have won three consecutive NCAA indoor titles, scoring as few as 19 points to finish ahead of the field. And Robison feels that 20 or more points could turn the trick again this year.

BYU's points will have to come from performers in the shot put, pole vault, three-mile and distance medley.

Freshman Per Nilsson will carry the Cougar colors in the shot, and could place for points, if he can measure up to his season's best of 62.9. This is an event in which UTEP is expected to place first.

Orem's Jim Barry is entered in the pole vault, where he is capable of placing among the top five. Barry has cleared 17.0 this season and that effort would have tied him for fourth last year in Detroit.

Distance runner Luis Hernandez, a freshman from Mexico, will run the three-mile event. Hernandez set a new WAC record in the three-mile recently in Albuquerque and may have the best chance of any BYU entry to score high.

Robison will also enter a distance medley team composed of Dale Connolly (440), Doug Murdock (800), Jay Woods (1321) and Hernandez (mile).

A week following the NCAA meet in Detroit, the Cougars will open the 1977 outdoor season at Tempe in a double dual meet with Arizona State and USC.

Intramurals needs refs

The Intramural Office is in need of volunteer referees for the area church basketball tournament scheduled for March 26 and April 1 and 2 (between conference sessions).

According to Ernie Denney, assistant intramural director, the official will not be paid, but the office needs about 60 referees for the three-day tournament.

"We've had some very good refs this year and some pretty bad ones," Denney said. "If you feel like you're qualified, come in and talk to me or Tom Magill." The Intramurals Office is in 112 RB, extension 3992.

UTEP eyes 4th indoor title

DETROIT (AP) — Wilson Waigwa, who has run a 3:55.7 mile, leads a Texas-El Paso contingent that hopes to grab its fourth straight NCAA indoor track and field championship today and Saturday at Cobo Arena.

Last year a record 57 teams scored points in the meet out of 112 universities entered. Indications are more teams may score points this time.

Other outstanding milers will compete besides Waigwa, including Niall O'Shaughnessy of Arkansas. Olympic gold medalist Harvey Glance of Auburn tops the list of outstanding sprinters entered. NCAA champions Mark Belger of Villanova and Mark Encart, a U.S. Olympian from Utah State, lead a strong 880 field.

Among the other top athletes expected are pole vaulter Earl Bell of Arkansas State and Illinois long jumper Charlton Ehiuelen.

Terry Abbruto, who was at Hawaii last year when he captured the shot put title, is now at Stanford. But he may not be able to defend his crown because of a pulled leg muscle suffered last weekend in Toronto when he won the shot put in an international meet with the Soviets and Canadians.

Waigwa, a Kenyan, has won 10 individual championships in the Western Athletic Conference. Last month in the WAC indoor meet he won the mile and two-mile and anchored the winning medley team. He was scheduled to run for Kenya in the Olympics last year at Montreal, but his team withdrew.

Preliminaries begin this morning. There are six finals in the evening. Most of the finals are scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

Discontent marks baseball openers

By The Associated Press

Mark Fidrych picked up where he left off last season, pitching three scoreless innings for the Detroit Tigers in a 3-4 exhibition opener against the Boston Red Sox, but there was discontent at Cincinnati's camp as the Reds' 10-time All-Star third baseman Pete Rose refused to sign his contract.

In the Detroit-Boston game Wednesday at Winter Haven, Fla., Jason Thompson, Ben Ogilvie and Mickey Stanley cracked home runs for the Tigers. Fidrych, the American League's Rookie of the Year who won 19 games last year, gave up only three hits in three innings.

At Tampa, Fla., Rose said he wouldn't sign, and decried what he called a lack of appreciation by the Reds for his dedication. He said he might play out his option because of the bitter salary dispute.

"Why are they negotiating on the date of my birth rather than on my batting average?" said the 36-year-old Rose, who has batted .300 in 11 of his last 12 years.

Rose has played 2,184 games in his 17-year career with the Reds' organization. And there was just as much bitterness in Boston, where pitching ace Luis Tiant said he might go back to Mexico after failing to come to terms with the Red Sox in his demand for an extension of his contract and a no-cut clause.

"The way I'm feeling right now is I'll go home," he said. "I've had enough."

Oregon took the lead after a 40-40 halftime tie as forward Greg Ballard scored 43 points, helping offset Roberts' one-man show.

In the Virginia Tech-Georgetown game, the Gobblers grabbed the lead on a layup by Marshall Ashford with 14:04 remaining. A drive by Ron Bell and two free throws by Phil Thiensman built the margin to 55-50.

Ashford hit 16 of his 24 points in the second half. Georgetown got a game-high 28 points from Derrick Johnson. The Hoyas twice closed the gap to two points in the final three minutes.

Villanova, 21-9, trailed by as many as 11 points against the Monarchs but pulled even on a field goal by Whitey Rigby with 4:53 to go. A 20-footer by Old Dominion's Jeff Fuhrmann with 1:05 left forced the game into overtime.

In the extra period, Larry Herron's two free throws with 3:45 remaining clinched the victory for the Wildcats.

Houston led by as many as 10 points in the second half against Indiana State but the Sycamores outscored the Cougars 12-2 over a late three-minute span.

With one minute left, Indiana State's Larry Bird tied the score 82-82. With 37 seconds remaining, though, the Sycamores' Dan Rutledge fouled Mike Schultz, who made his first shot but missed the second. Bird got the ball under the basket but his jump shot bounced off the rim as the buzzer sounded.

Dr. Richards tired of 'oddity'

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Renee Richards is "tired of being like a monkey in a glass cage," and simply wants to be one of the top women tennis players in the world.

The 42-year-old ophthalmologist from Newport Beach, Calif., who underwent sex-change surgery in 1975, said Wednesday she doesn't want to be looked at as an oddity. "I want to play tennis and win tournaments."

"I'm doing my thing now. It has reached the point where I am no longer willing to be an oddity for the sports public. I'm through doing that. I've paid my dues to those people.

"That's sad to say for someone who was as naive and wide-eyed as I was when I started these social causes to help other transsexuals. I should have known everything wasn't going to be the way I expected."

"I have become cynical and skeptical. All these ulterior motives have turned me off. No longer am I Renee Richards, transsexual on a social mission — and I'm not a two-headed monster anymore."

those Greedy little fellows with their palms stretched out. They're the "Rent bars" that strip you of your hard-earned dollars. To some they are absolutely sary, because they provide you with a place to live, a place to call home who lack other means of providing themselves and their families with

ne. As we see it, there are three ways available to anyone with the means ovide that home.

Renting: There are those who, because of limited means lack of credit backed, limited support from family or job, or a dozen other reasons, are forced ome victims of the "Rent Barons."

Buying a home: This is of course the most equitable way. Property values creasing rapidly and most people who own homes today are finding their nal worth increasing just as rapidly. Most students, however, find the pay-and taxes on a conventional home just a little beyond their means and still remain the victims of the "Rent Barons."

Buying a Mobile Home: This is the only way today that most students can the exercise of a little caution, beat the "Rent Barons." Not by buying the simple, elaborate, new mobile homes on the market today, but by buying a

2 or 3 bedroom used mobile home that has been kept in good shape and not to depreciate in value. One where the payments on the home and the rent will equal about what you would be paying in rent. One that's already in a nice park with skirting, cooler, and if you need it, one that's already shed.

That's the way to beat the "Rent Barons." That's the way for a student to here with money instead of rent receipts. And that's where we at Wright Mobile Homes come in. We have over 35 mobile homes, already in parks, available for your inspection. They will provide you with not only a home, but they'll give you a little more privacy, pride of ownership and mean write off the interest you pay on your mobile home loan.

Y library globe finds new home

By ANTOINE CLARK
Universe Staff Writer

Students in the Harold B. Lee Library will no longer be able to "meet by the globe" because the globe has been moved from the north end of the library's third floor to the Eyring Science Center.

Stirling Albright, an associate director for the library, said the globe was moved to 257 ESC because, "We want to make a useful function out of it and not an artifact."

Research was done before removal of the globe, said to Ed Haines, director of space utilization at BYU. Haines, who is secretary of the Campus Planning Committee which was in charge of the move, said, "The globe didn't serve a library function and the geology people wanted it, so the change was made." The BYU globe is a very unusual item, according to Haines.

"It is not a geological globe but a geo-physical globe," he said. This style of geo-physical globe was somewhat of a rare item at the time of its purchase, Haines said. In 1965 there were only seven in the United States when the Blue Key Honorary Society and the class of 1966 purchased the hand-made globe from Rand McNally corporation of San Francisco.

The globe is six feet in diameter and 20 feet around at the equator. It is inclined at a 23.5 degree angle to correspond with the earth's axis and is cast in two hemispheres of fiberglass. He said the total weight of the globe is 34 pounds.

Jeremiah S. Finch, dean of Princeton University, said of the globe, "It is a value beyond that which the layman might recognize. It will be of inestimable advantage in scientific research." Though he said the Grant Haut, a senior in physics from Palo Alto, Calif., observes the world globe in its new home, the Eyring Science Center. The geo-physical globe will be of value to the geology department in its new place.

geo-physical globe has absolutely no value to a geologist, Robert Layton, chairman of the Department of Geology, said he considers the geo-physical relief globe an indispensable item. "Flat maps and smaller globes are useful, but do not carry the accuracy, nor do they begin to have the overall impact of this large globe."

Academics, culture offered in Hawaiian study program

Semester in Hawaii not only offers an academic experience in a tropical setting but is a cultural experience on an international campus where over half of its students come from outside the United States.

According to Dunn Hone of BYU Travel Studies, students involved in the Semester in Hawaii program can complete their education on the Hawaii campus as easily as in Provo. "The registrars of BYU and BYU-Hawaii Campus have an agreement on general education requirements," he said, "so that students can have a smooth transfer of credits."

Hone said students will be given a schedule of courses and descriptions before they leave the mainland so that the course-work in Hawaii will harmonize with their academic program at BYU.

"In addition, the academic program offers courses that you can't get anywhere else," he added. "Like deep sea diving and marine biology and classes in travel industry."

Hone also said the students will be attending classes with students from places such as Thailand, Tahiti and Australia.

"You will be working with people who are new in the church," he continued. Glenn Hansen who is responsible for registration for Semester in Hawaii, said the majority of the students have been pleased with the program. "In fact," she said, "there have been no complaints. Many students who have been on the semester program will come in and thank me for such a good time," Mrs. Hansen said.

Students should have a program planned before going to Hawaii and "not just sign-up for underwater basketweaving," she said.

Naney Skanchy, a sophomore majoring in nursing at BYU originally from Viet Nam, commented on the people. "While I was on the Hawaii campus last semester, I felt at home," she said. "I was a majority not a minority."

In addition to working in the Cultural Center, Charleen Coburn, a former student in Hawaii, said she worked with her branch as a guide at the temple.

She said a Japanese man visiting at the temple was surprised that some Japanese people could be Mormons. Dr. "It makes people realize," she said, "that we are a universal church."

Those interested in Semester in Hawaii may contact Mrs. Hansen in Travel Studies.

Groundbreaking delayed for Provo hotel complex

Groundbreaking for the Provo Plaza Hotel should take place in the spring of 1978, the developer of the hotel said Wednesday during a visit in Provo.

Robert Schwartz, president of Hotel Development Consultants, said the groundbreaking schedule had been revised from the originally planned

October date because of a question about the availability of the Ashton block. The block would hold the proposed apartments.

Schwartz told the Utah Valley Activities Center Committee and city officials the Provo project is about 75 per cent sure at this point.

He promised to deliver a detailed description of the project by April 10. The delay in the groundbreaking was made because the owner of Harry Heathman Chevrolet, which currently occupies the P.E. Ashton property, has not yet determined where he would like to relocate.

Heathman still has three years remaining on his lease on the property which occupies most of the block between 100 and 200 North and between 100 and 200 West.

The hotel's exterior will pre-cast concrete mosaic, similar to cast stone panels at the J. Reuben Clark, Jr. Law School, Schwartz said. Architect Lee Knell said no decision has been made on the apartments' exterior, but said it will be harmonious with the hotel.

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

'Conning' candidates clouds voting process

Recent disclosures that some candidates were encouraged to run for ASBYU office to increase the number of primary races is disgusting.

Two have since withdrawn from races, and two yet remain.

Most had no intention of campaigning or even running for office.

Some said they were encouraged to run or filed only to put a third name on the ballot to force a primary runoff.

Others were encouraged to run to attract extra publicity for candidates—something only a primary race could provide.

Chris Burdick, in Thursday's news story, said that "candidates can't get a voter breakdown or find out where their support is coming from" if they don't run in primaries.

No reason justifies drafting people to run for office who have no intention of campaigning or seriously seeking that office.

Whether it be to force primaries to increase voter turnout, to garner extra publicity or to determine voter support, "conning" people into running shows an utter lack of respect and disregard for the election process.

Such artificial tactics only serve to throw a wrench into the election situation and to make students apathetic.

To encourage such candidates to run makes an unfortunate mockery of the election process and student government.

Certainly, no government body can or should be organized to measure a candidate's intent. And no government agency should eliminate from the election process "non-serious" contenders. It would not always be possible to determine who was serious and who was not. Sometimes insignificant to one might be serious business for another.

Intention and seriousness are things the voter must determine and decide when he marks his ballot.

Recently in Washington State, a full slate of candidates ran for statewide office on the "Owl Party" ticket. None were serious candidates as was evidenced by their platforms, and, as could be expected, none was elected.

Many times these situations happen. But for a government body or other candidates to encourage such action for their own purposes shows a marked lack of integrity and honesty.

All involved with the elections, including candidates, should evaluate their motives carefully to reestablish an election worthy of student involvement.

Elder Alvin R. Dyer's life one worthy of emulation

Elder Alvin R. Dyer of the First Quorum of the Seventy will certainly be missed.

His well-rounded life devoted to service to God as well as mankind is one worthy of emulation.

Elder Dyer served in many church capacities—as Assistant to the Council of the Twelve, member of the First Presidency, president of the Central States and European missions, first counselor in a bishopric, YMMIA superintendent, high councilman, bishop, Sunday school superintendent and most recently as a member of the First Quorum of Seventy.

His years of missionary service prompted several books on the work. In addition, he authored books on history and on the meaning of life.

Elder Dyer worked as an engineer in the heating and ventilation field, starting out as a sheet metal worker. From 1934-1949 he was a department manager for Utah Builders Supply and later organized his own company in which he disposed his interests in 1955.

During World War II, Elder Dyer served as a member of the American Military Engineers.

His athletic ability was not lacking. He played basketball during his high school years and at one time bowled in major leagues. Following his first mission, he was offered a chance to play professional baseball, but declined because of church responsibilities.

Elder Alvin R. Dyer—author, laborer, businessman, athlete, citizen, church leader and spiritual example.

Not only is his a life worth remembering, but worth using as a guide in all aspects of self-betterment.

Election procedures encourage violations

The theme of this year's ASBYU elections is POWER. Student government has power. Nothing could be more humorous, yet some seem serious about proving it.

Election officials and judges are shocked by the number of campaign violations and in their official capacities they vigorously prosecute and punish the wrongdoers. They honestly strive for justice and equality, yet the rules and process they endorse actually breed violations and inequality.

The efficiency of the election process is roughly comparable in a situation where all interested in finding mates must dress nicely, shake hands and smile at each other for two weeks. At the end of that time you pick one. You can't do anything beforehand to prepare and you have to live with the gruesome results.

Rules are only as justified as the benefits they provide. Rules which prohibit pre-campaign efforts provide no benefits. Instead of encouraging good, hard work and organizational skills, they promote brief, flashy campaigns of promises and images.

Some suggestions:

1. With the exception of passing out any printed matter, candidates should be able to actively organize a campaign and solicit workers anytime before the elections.

2. Elections should be extended one week. This might cure the fever of being the first to pollute the campus with posters.

3. Money limits should be kept. Student government doesn't need the added criticism of favoring big business.

Student government isn't power. It is service. The election process should be designed to encourage rather than prohibit good organizational efforts and hard work that will provide that valuable service.

How do you spell 'relief'?

Ship snow? Let's keep thinking

In spite of the recent snow in the West, experts say there will still be a problem with water this summer. And with the problem of too much snow in the east, one can almost see why some people have suggested shipping snow from the East to the West.

According to an Associated Press story, the California Department of Water Resources has received numerous calls and letters saying bringing in snow from other states could solve the drought problem.

It would take a train of 182 million cars full of water or tightly packed snow to make up for California's water shortage. If this group of cars were linked together and traveled 50 miles per hour, it would take four years for the train to pass a person standing at a single spot on the rail line.

In addition, it would require 77 billion gallons of fuel to get the cars to California. America doesn't even begin to have the number of trains this monumental project would require. If all the tank and open train cars in the country were given this one job, each would have to make 500 round-trips to complete the task.

And that is just to meet the 2.3 trillion gallons of water California is short. If Utah and the other water-short Western states were added to that—well, it's beyond comprehension.

So people, it won't work. Don't don't stop thinking! It's a good sign to see people thinking of ways to alleviate the drought.

There are going to be problems this summer—ideally not as severe as some people predict, but problems and inconveniences nevertheless.

In thinking of ways to solve the drought problem, people will hopefully consider the very wise idea of water conservation now.

That's right! Now, while there's snow on the ground and a dry summer seems far away.

It would be better to be scared into conserving water while we can and find endocrine disorder recommended because to verify its efficacy, using raw milk and an adequate range of nutrients."

Even my favorite diet, banana diet, "provides supplies of many nutrients. The only recommendation prescribed by Wayne International. The recommended "provision for nutrition and for the education of food choices."

It seems all "reputable" are alike. They all claim quick, easy and safe to maintain weight loss. Really lose weight is habits.

That makes sense! I think I'll go on the "diet" even though it's extremely limited. I lose would be likely could tolerate the three-week period. After all, I can't carry pounds I can have the fudge sundae sooner.

Military lacking despite claims of Carter, liberals in congress

"Peace Through Strength."

The Strategic Air Command motto may be seen at the entrance of most Air Force bases throughout the country. If the present trend to cut the defense budget continues, the sign may read, "Peace Through Weakness."

Outside (and therefore impartial) sources maintain that the United States is lagging far behind the Soviet Union. The Soviet Army, Navy and Air Force have more personnel and material than their American counterparts. They have more, potent nuclear-tipped long-range missiles than does the United States.

America still has a larger bomber force, but this force is made up of obsolete B52s, which Soviet bombers surpassed almost five years ago.

The only positive outlook for America's defense rests with the highly controversial B1 bomber and cruise missile. These two weapons could easily turn the balance of power back to the United States. But because of the powerful liberal voices of Teddy Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey (to name a few), production and deployment of these weapons is still in doubt.

Such an imbalance in weapons strength at the United States is not "more power" Soviet Union, as Jimmy Carter has told repeatedly on the edge of President's "peace" campaign.

Liberal congressmen say there is too defense spending. They contend that the talk ought to be channeled into more "work programs."

It is amazing that our government prefers into programs the constitution mentions the expense of defense, one constitutionally-based program.

If it is the job of our government to defend its people, then it is not doing its job cannot afford a weak, vulnerable defense. This time it is in the for election and through steps might soon be taken to make our secure.

Sense of humor lacks

Editor:

It has become increasingly evident that there exists, hopefully, a minority of students attending BYU who lack wit in the spirit they were of humor. These individuals, I feel, also lack the maturity to distinguish between articles of entertainment, written in the spirit, but (such as kissing, ideal man, ideal woman and "King of the Zoo") and articles (of which I've found none) that are truly "degrading" and "defiling" of the "Lord's University."

Using a quote from Balmanno, the "simpleton who knows not what he does" lies within this group of people, who take literally and personally these articles of entertainment.

Though not always agreeing with these articles myself, I have taken them in the spirit they were written—fun—and found them to be entertaining. I am surprised that comes such as "Pete Provo" and "Peanuts" have not come under the scrutiny of this group of individuals.

Finally, for those narrow-minded, self-righteous stuffed-shirts who "wrest with the scriptures" and do not understand them (D&C 10:63), Depart and go hence!

—David R. Salo
La Crescenta, Calif.

We're not sheep!

Editor:

As a rule, the phrase "the Lord's University" will soon be followed by some piece of utter nonsense.

Dan Higimbotham, in Wednesday's letter, offers no exception. Since administrators of "the Lord's University" are inspired, he argues, we should not question their actions or prosperity, for they know better than we.

But this is troubling. Is there a caste system in the church? Have we ever sustained the administration as prophets? Was Dallin Oaks hired as an executive staffer? Does he claim to preside with divine authority? Must all ideas in the church descend from the top? Why, then, didn't that young stake president, Harold B. Lee, wait for general authorities to institute the first welfare plan?

The democracy of the gospel must not be traded for a cheap fascism or an ecclesiastical leadership.

Higimbotham asserts—correctly that "we the students are the ones who can make BYU great." But, oddly, he suggests that we start by "electing student leaders who will help us do just that." Fond dream! The thousands of hours squandered in campaign frivolities could be better spent in study. When we can think for ourselves, when we are no longer sheep, but students—for we never were cougars, merely little lambs—then BYU will be great.

I like the paintings that have recently been hung in the library. I would like to thank whoever was responsible. I am familiar with the paintings by C.E.A. Christensen and am glad to see them being displayed. These paintings depict scenes in Mormon history—history that directly contributed to the existence of BYU today. I think the paintings add a little class to otherwise bare walls.

Mercy robbing justice?

Editor:

I would like to thank the ASBYU Common Court for its stand on election rule violators. The suspension of penalty for the guilty parties proved conclusively that morality in politics is not essential in our view of good government, and that we generally take such things too seriously.

Rumors that Ehrlichman, Haldean, and Dean are apostate once studied Political Science student officers' unconfirmed. These return to the flock upon we are changing the Book of Mormon to proclaim that "justice." Just thinking of my heart go "thump," seek good principles to accept this wise verdict, to the depths!

Women 'too

Editor: It is time we men light our torches again and the old Frankenstein. Because there is a new "lost" in the COPE liberation at BYU.

Sure I believe in equal rights for women. I follow the points: 1. Women's Office as part of Men's Office. 2. We are changing the Book of Mormon to proclaim that "justice." Just thinking of my heart go "thump," seek good principles to accept this wise verdict, to the depths!

I could go on, but I made my point. Equal equality?
